

10 Years. 100 Communities.

Lessons learned about systems change for children in nature

TRANSFORMATIONAL CHANGE HAPPENS WHEN...

COMMUNITIES BRING

Well-equipped teams

- Active participation in process
- Leadership with authority & capacity
- Cross-sector representation
- Policy & institutional awareness
- Systems change mindset

NATURE EVERYWHERE PROVIDES

Proven process & evidence-based resources

- Structured, scaffolded process
- Strategic guidance & expertise
- Funding to close capacity gaps
- Peer learning & shared solutions
- Evidence-based tools
- National credibility

TOGETHER, THESE RESULT IN CHILDREN'S EQUITABLE ACCESS TO NATURE

Stronger relationships emerge

- Cross-agency & community collaboration deepens
- Youth & community voices shape planning
- Evidence supports children's nature access
- A shared vision takes hold

Shifts in institutions & structures

- Policies integrated into broader frameworks
- Funding & resources redirected for nature access
- Nature-based infrastructure is enacted

Nature embedded in mindsets & norms

- Planning & budgets include nature-based solutions
- Children's access to nature becomes a priority
- Equity guides nature access decisions

Insights from an independent evaluation confirm that Nature Everywhere's proven process and resources, combined with strong community teams and time, drive lasting change.

Children & Nature Network

NATURE EVERYWHERE
COMMUNITIES

LEARN MORE AT CHILDRENANDNATURE.ORG